

STUDENTS' USE OF BAD LANGUAGE

Student-teacher relationships are of fundamental importance both inside and outside the classroom. Students are expected to be polite at all times. Swearing will not be tolerated whether it is directly to a member of staff (teaching or non-teaching), another student or indirectly when a teacher hears such language.

If such an incident should occur, an isolation period may result after which readmittance back into the normal teaching environment would only occur after reassurances from both the student and the parents/guardians.

Reoccurrence of such an incident would incur an exclusion period.
